

Greater Good Educators Program

Exploring Science-Based Practices for Kinder, Happier Schools Where Everyone Belongs

“ I found my people and I can't wait for the next session.

“ It was amazing being able to collaborate and learn from others in the same field.

“ It was great to spend time with other educators who are trying to implement these practices in their classrooms as I have been.

Coming Fall 2024! This program from Greater Good Science Center will provide PreK-12 school-based educators an opportunity to explore the science and practical application of individual and collective well-being, to support the development of schools and classrooms where both students and adults thrive.

Who this program is for:

- Classroom teachers (preK-12)
- School site administrators
- SEL school based specialists
- School mental health professionals and counselors
- Pre-service educators
- Whole School Teams

What you will do:

Each month you will engage with a new self-paced learning module and implement a selected practice(s) in your school setting. You will also join a small group of other educators in a synchronous online community of practice to discuss the module content, your implementation experiences, learnings, and wonderings with one another.

“There was so much to choose from. The approach allowed every participant to choose what was relevant in their context.

“AMAZING! The variations for different age groups and the user friendly directions are fantastic.

“The strategies that I put into practice during the past weeks were a success. I shared this with my team and I received great advices and feedback.

“More than I could ever use! Perfect to design a school's wellness program around.

When you join our 2024 cohort, you will gain:

- Access to 3 science-based learning modules (e.g. purpose, compassion, gratitude), and a deep dive into one each month
- 7 virtual community of practice sessions
- Opportunities to connect with and learn from educators around the world in synchronous gathering and online discussions
- Rich resource bank of materials ranging from research to turnkey practices
- Ongoing support and personal guidance from Greater Good Science Center's education team

How to apply:

We are currently recruiting both individual educators and whole school teams to participate from September-December 2024.

Applications for individual educators are due on August 9th, 2024.

Whole School Teams will work with the education team to create a professional development schedule that works for them.

Please contact us or scan the QR code for more information: ggsceducation@berkeley.edu.

